

OKYO

The broad expertise of OKYO is all the proof you need in order to trust their vision. The Belgian interior architecture studio was founded in 2009 by Jochen Magyar and has evolved into a renowned address for all kinds of commissions. Every project of theirs carries a common thread of functional yet elegant quality. Thanks to their own atelier, the team is, next to the creative and conceptual input, specialised in custom joinery and an exquisite finishing. With experience in both private and professional interiors, they are familiar with a diverse range of projects. This time, they again took care of nurturing a special synergy. Aesthetics and comfort should go hand in hand, according to the team, so that is exactly what they strived for. While selecting the fitting materials, the studio never loses sight of the importance of an approachable and warm palette. Naturally, they continued to go down this road. Even though the residence has an unmistakable modern basis, the home communicates an inviting feeling. Time and again, the designers know exactly how to achieve the ideal balance between everyday use and a true reflection of their creative vision.

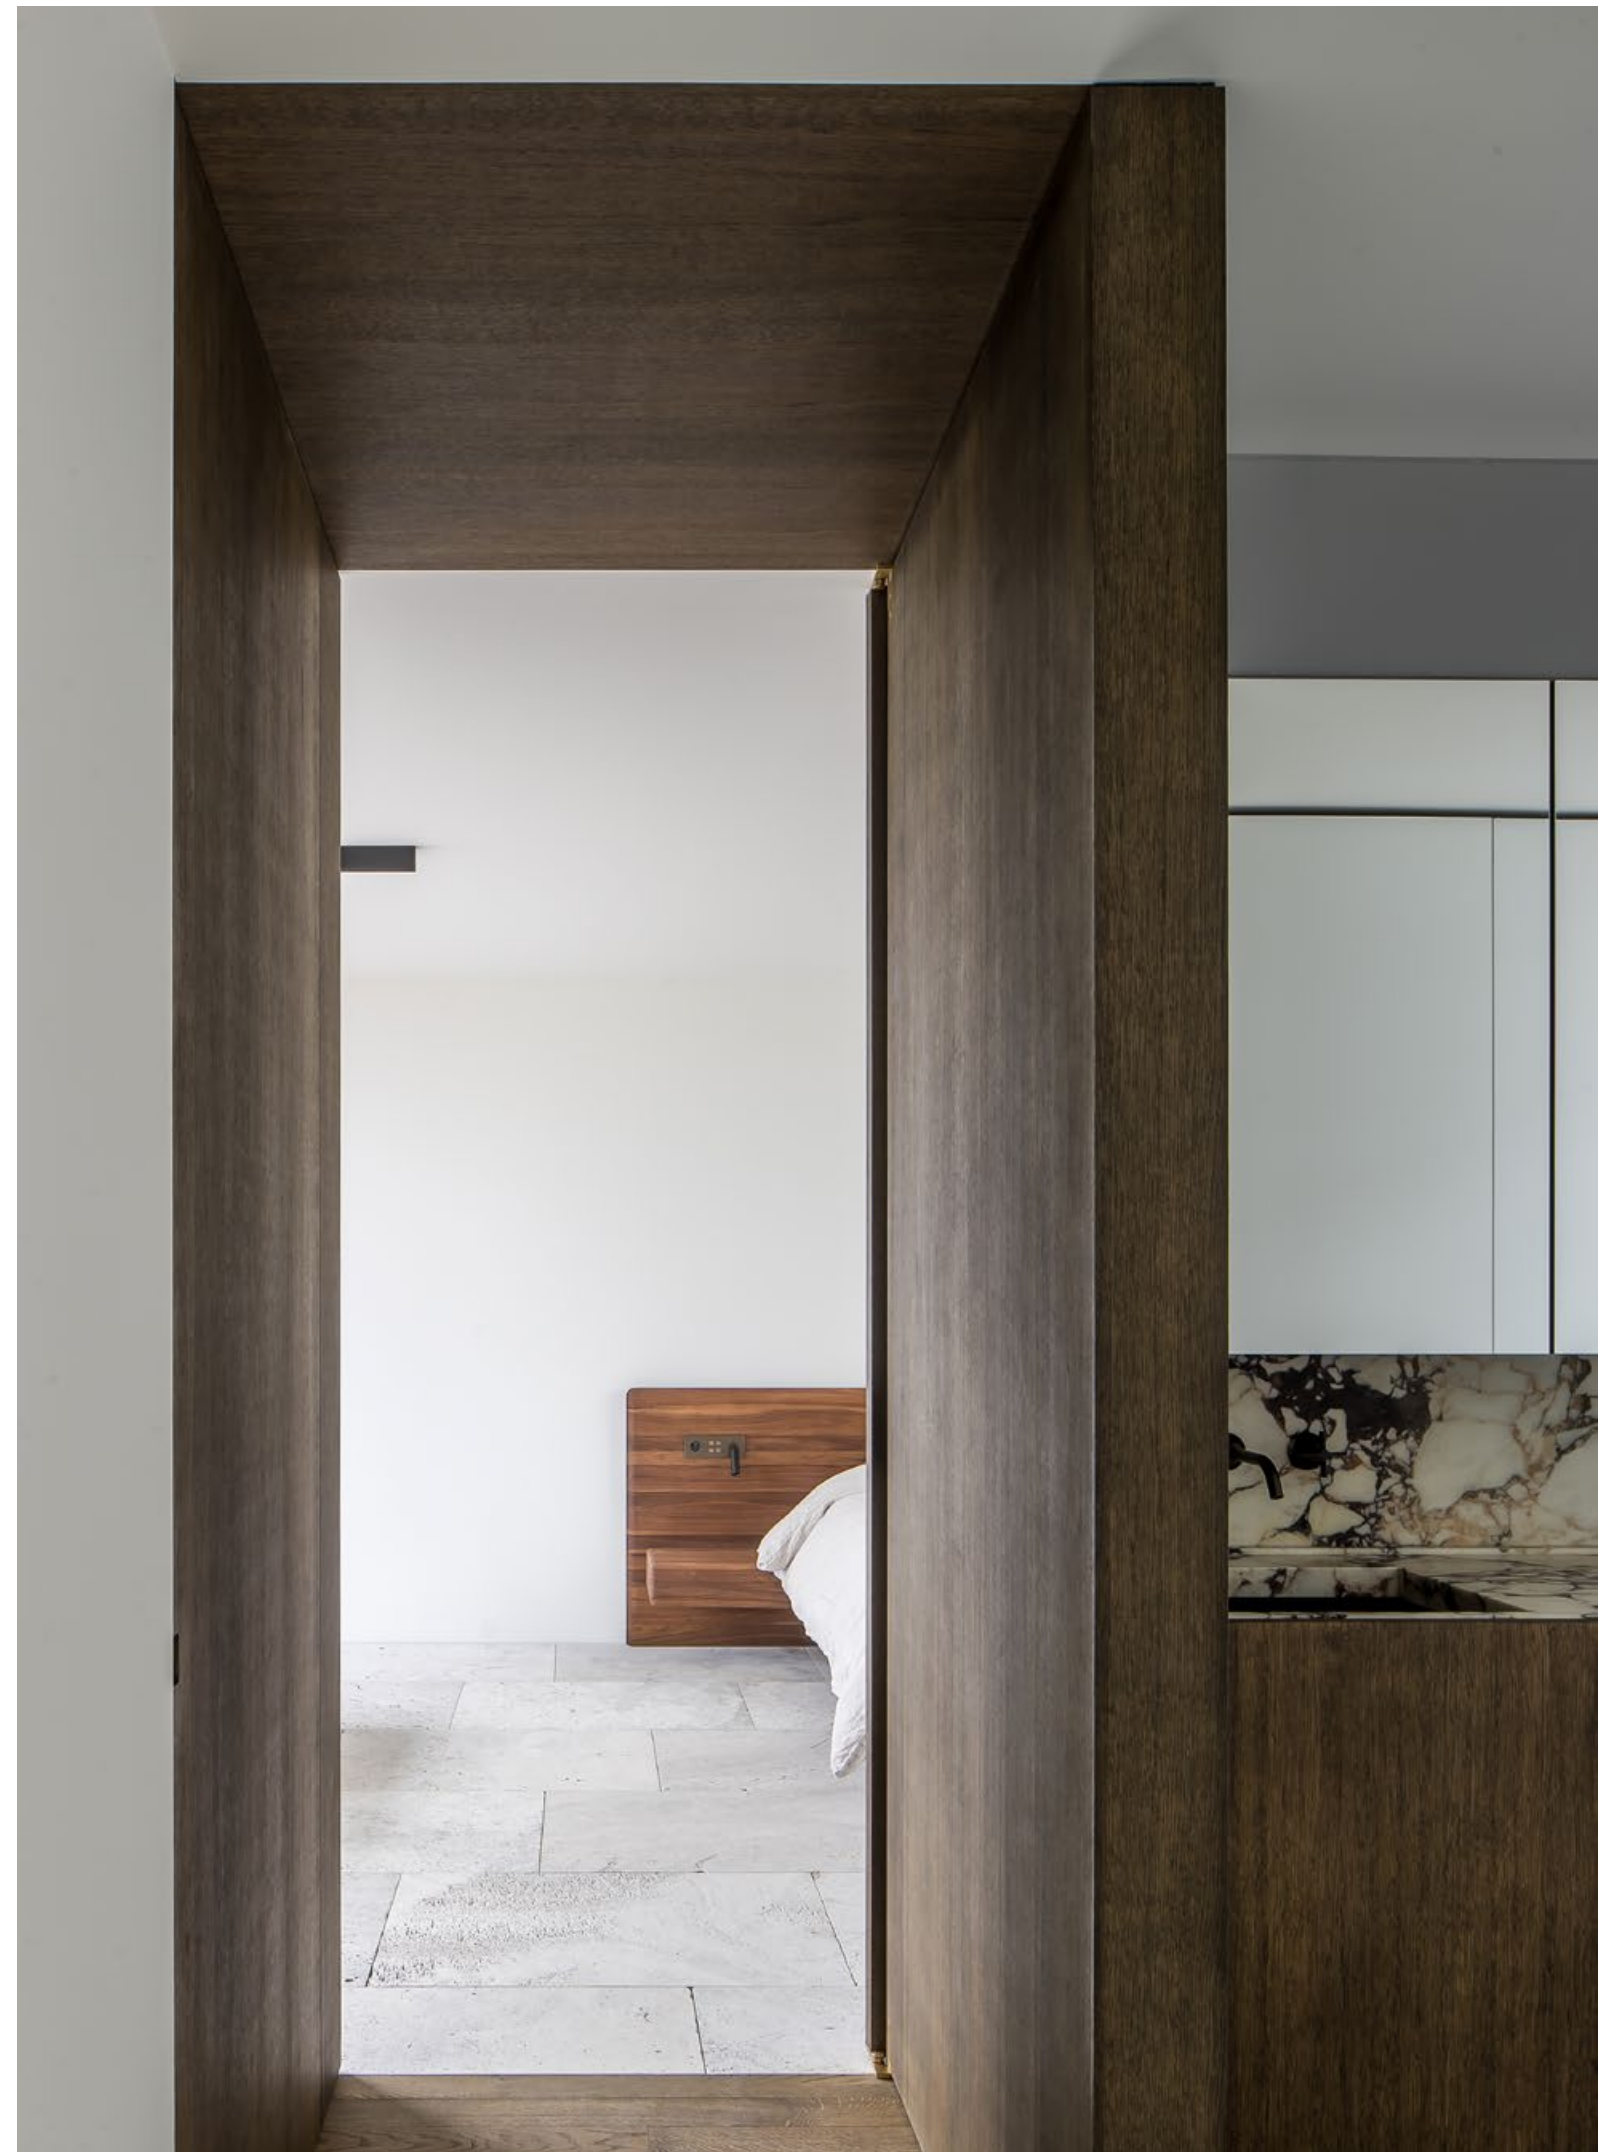

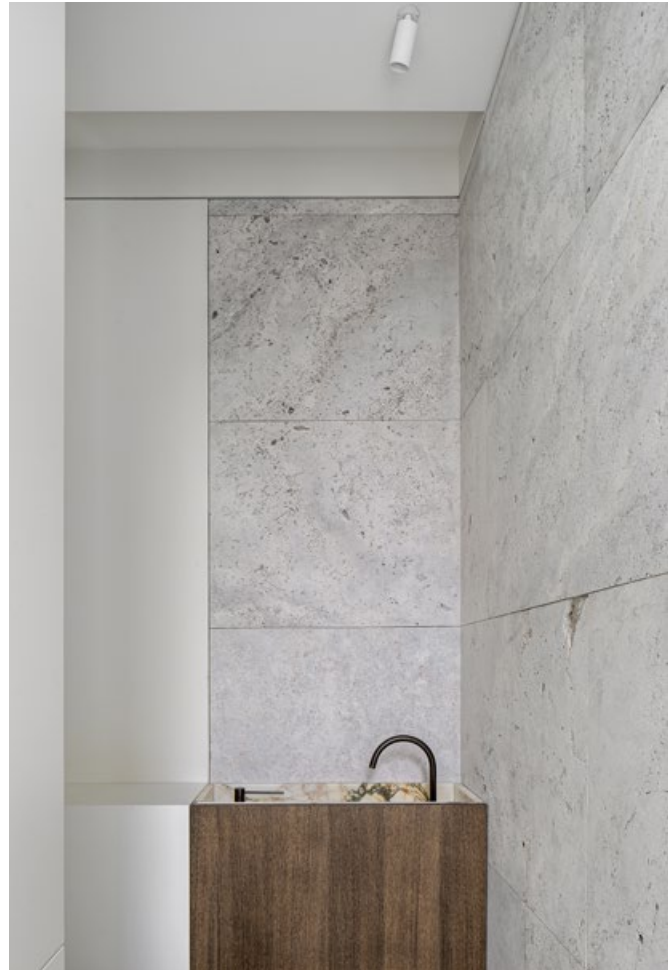

Portrait photography by - Project photography by Cafeine

QUOTE.

